The Feigenbaum Medal is presented to an individual who is 35 years of age or younger (as of October 1 of applying year), who has displayed outstanding characteristics of leadership, professionalism, and potential in the field of quality; and whose work has been, or will become, of distinct benefit to mankind.

Award Criteria and Eligibility Requirements

The Feigenbaum Medal Committee may propose not more than one candidate each year. That candidate may be chosen by the Society Awards Board based on a major single outstanding accomplishment, and/or several significant accomplishments in one or more areas of activity. The Award recipient will receive this recognition only once in his/her lifetime. The recipient must demonstrate leadership in the profession as well as Society work. No limitation is placed on who may receive the Feigenbaum Medal — ASQ member or nonmember, graduate or non-graduate, engineer or manager, scientist or technologist or researcher, student or professor. The award's image is international and evaluation of candidates considers their contribution to quality namely regarding innovation (development, application and publication of new concepts), promotion (training, presentations, teaching, etc.), application (professional activities, implementations, consulting) and sponsoring (support to quality and other professional societies, public sector and not for profit organizations, etc.).

The nomination form must be submitted as a Word file or pdf file by e-mail to the Committee Chair, as well as a paper copy sent by mail (including a photo). You may attach additional pages, if necessary, but the nomination package is limited to a maximum of 12 pages. Avoid duplicating information or providing information in excess of that required to demonstrate the nominee's qualifications. Please submit the form and supporting documentation showing contributions to the quality profession to:
